BLONDE Priscilla Lane, (above) most famous of the three Lane sisters, today took her place as one of the nation's war brides. Despite her attempts at secrecy, it leaked out that she had been married to Lieut. Joseph Howard, a bombardier and flying instructor at Victorville, Calif. It was the kind of rush war marriage which has become familiar since Pearl Harbor. Priscilla had planned to wait until after June 1 for the marriage.

MEMBER OF AEF FACES CHARGES AS MURDERER

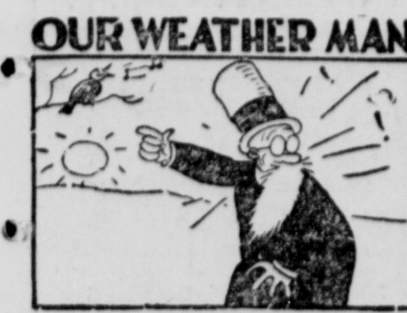

UNITED NATIONS HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, May 23 — United States military authorities disclosed today that an American soldier is being held in connection with the slaying of three Melbourne women.

The unnamed soldier, a young man, faces a general court martial by United States officers. Conviction on the charges would bring a death penalty.

Under suspicion for almost two weeks — since the half naked body of a Melbourne woman was found in the doorway of a downtown hotel — the soldier was arrested last night at a United States encampment somewhere in Australia.

Since the first crime occurred two weeks ago two other Melbourne women have been slain. The most recent slaying took place early this week when a comely member of the faculty of the University of Melbourne was killed.

Announcing the detention of the soldier this morning, United States military authorities said a general court martial board was being convened for a complete investigation of the case and for eventual trial of the soldier.

Rigid Control Over Movements Through Nation Looms

WASHINGTON, May 23 — The nation's war planners today charted a revolutionary program of rigid controls over the day-to-day movements of every person in America as the war effort swept into a new phase — a transportation cycle concerned with the flow of men, munitions and materials.

Freedom of travel, the right of an individual to roam without restraint as to time, place, method and manner — is destined to become the next casualty of total war, a victim of the United States' all-out fight against the axis powers.

Clearly under consideration by federal war agencies, if not actually imminent, were:

1. Nation-wide restrictions on the consumption of gasoline to safeguard the country's most precious stockpile of rubber—automobile tires.
2. Rationing of travel by bus, boat, plane and railroad to clear transportation channels for a tremendous flow of men, munitions and materials of war.
3. Requisitioning of as many of the nation's 33,000,000 private passenger cars as are necessary to insure uninterrupted transportation of war workers to booming assembly lines.

Transportation is key. Officials frankly admitted that transportation holds the key to the nation's military success.

With the war six months old, every transportation requirement has been met to date. There has been no "break-down" anywhere in the expanding movement of troops, armaments, munitions, materials, supplies and essential civilian needs. Officials add, however, iron-clad controls will have to be exercised to guarantee that no transportation bottleneck develops in the crucial months ahead. Daily the transportation load is mounting.

Events of the last 48 hours have outlined the pattern of control of the nation's transportation facilities.

INVASION FORCE HIT BY CHINESE IN FUKIEN AREA

CHUNGKING, May 23 — Japanese invasion forces landed in the southeast coastal province of Fukien from a score of transports suffered a terrific defeat when half their number were mowed down by Chinese troops, Chinese military headquarters announced today.

The survivors, it was said, fled in frantic disorder back to their troopships and the fighting developed into a duel between protecting Japanese warships and Chinese shore batteries.

The Jap invasion forces attempted their landing at Chwan-shih island, north of the Min river estuary in Fukien, just south of Foochow.

Considerable war material was abandoned by the Japanese when they were sent fleeing in retreat by the Japanese.

Savage battles continued in progress in Chekiang province to the North as Chinese troops fought desperately to stem attempts by the Japanese to advance to the interior.

DUTCH KEEP UP ANTI-NAZI ACTS

"Poisoned Cocktails, Arrows, Shoves Into Canals Part Of Terrorist Program"

LONDON, May 23 — Lethal champagne cocktails, miniature poisoned arrows and the less subtle technique of pushing German soldiers into canals during blackouts are making the occupation of Holland a nightmare to the Nazis, the Netherlands Indies news agency revealed today.

When the Germans shot 96 Dutchmen recently on charges of maintaining contact with the British, it was just one more chapter in the spectacular saga of the Netherlands' fight against the occupation forces.

This latest court martial was, moreover, the most impressive evidence yet admitted by the Germans that such a widespread organization exists. Dutch quarters declare that the organization was not liquidated with these executions and that some of its leaders are still at large.

Secret organizations have existed in Holland ever since the Germans invaded that country. Almost exactly a year ago there was (Continued on Page Eight)

SCRANTON HARD HIT BY FLOODS AFTER TORRENT

SCRANTON, Pa., May 23 — Flood waters today swept over the low lands of Scranton and surrounding territories after a torrential downpour overflowed the Lackawanna river and its tributaries.

The swift-moving tide, which continued to rise, washed away the foundations of a half dozen small bridges in Scranton and left heavy property damage in its wake.

Radio appeals for boats were issued early today by police to rescue people stranded in the lower Scranton section.

An appeal for boats was also issued for the borough of Olyphant where the water was five feet deep in the main street.

Mayor William Monahan of Carbondale said the city was hit by its "most disastrous" flood.

Carbondale was inundated under two to four feet of water. Two bridges were damaged and traffic was at a standstill. The heart of the business district was under two feet of water over a twelve block area.

At Scranton, 50 families were moved from their homes and six D. L. & W. freight trains were halted by a washout at Summit and a passenger train was held up outside Scranton.

TWO HOOSIERS GRABBED AS SLUGGING SUSPECTS

WEST UNION, May 23 — Lloyd Wilson, 24, of Dunkirk, Ind., and Olen Stewart, 24, of Tipton, Ind., suspected of being the two bandits who slugged Adams county Sheriff Grimes Morgan and escaped en route to jail Wednesday, were captured in a woods near West Union by a posse.

Morgan was taking the two to jail in connection with the defrauding of a gas station attendant. Morgan said the men, who pushed him out of his car after slugging him, also confessed robbing a restaurant near Portsmouth.

Story Of Last Days On Bataan Told By Colonel

SAN FRANCISCO, May 23 — One of the most colorful stories of conditions on Bataan peninsula before its fall to overwhelming Jap odds was told today by Col. William T. Clement, former chief marine officer of Manila bay, who was spirited away to Australia on the eve of the peninsula's fall.

Pausing here in San Francisco on his way to Washington to receive new orders, the 48-year-old "devil dog" described in graphic fashion the American defense of the battered stronghold.

Garbed in the same battle-stained tropical khaki he wore when directing his forces, he told of massed Japanese artillery, augmented by continuous air pounding against a short section of the American battle line, and declared that these were the tactics that brought the final fall of the peninsula.

"The last night was pretty terrible," the colonel related. "Throughout the night we were demolishing supplies and blowing up ammunition dumps."

"Our troops were too tired, too weak to block the Japs."

"Food was our chief problem. Since January the troops had been on half rations, and it was mostly rice at that. We ate every carabao and every cavalry horse except Col. George Clark's. Clark's horse was so tough nobody could eat it."

Col. Clement is a resident of Richmond, Va. He was evacuated from the Philippines for special duty in western Australia.

He praised the Philippine scouts as the best fighting men he had ever known.

"They are fearless, marvelously acute and they are adept at jungle warfare," he declared.

He said the Jap soldier is a rugged fellow, but that he is no super man.

"He doesn't use his head like an American. Tell him to do something and that's his horizon," the colonel said.

"But the Jap is stubborn. You have to kill him to stop him. And the Jap is extremely tricky, especially at guerrilla tactics."

"The snipers frequently hid in trees for a day or two and let us pass several times before opening fire."

"They often spoke perfect English and used it to trap several of our men. Sometimes they'd pretend surrender. You'd hear them call, 'We give up. We've had enough.' Then, when men went out to get them, they'd open fire. I suppose that's legitimate."

BRITISH REPORT GEN. STILWELL REACHES INDIA

LONDON, May 23 — Safe arrival in India of Lieut. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell, who commanded United States and Chinese troops in Burma, was disclosed today in a dispatch from Stanley Gardner, Exchange Telegraph correspondent at Assam.

The dispatch said:

"I can confirm the safety of General Stilwell, whom I interviewed while he breakfasted on biscuits, canned cheese and a thermos flask of tea."

"We brought 104 persons with us, including the American Dr. Seagrave from the American Baptist mission, Burmese nurses as well as British, American, Burmese, Anglo-Indian and Indian citizens," he said.

"Many joined us when they learned we had some chow. It was a mixed gathering, but when we got a little discipline in them everything was all right."

"There are still a lot of refugees in Burma but I think they will do a sight better to stay there than face the toils and privations of mountain paths in trying to get out."

"The general would not talk about the fighting nor of the route he followed, but I know he must have travelled a most difficult way."

"It was pretty tough going," he said, "but we made it okeh. As I look back on it, it was no fun but I would face it again."

"I managed to pick up some supplies dropped to us from the air. I don't think the Japs knew where we were. All our marches were forced ones."

"I was unaware of the anxiety about us until I found American officers had been looking for us."

122,000 YOUTHS OF 18 AND 19 TO BE REGISTERED

COLUMBUS, May 23 — Ohio has approximately 122,000 youths between the ages of 18 and 20 who will sign up in the fifth registration June 30, state selective service headquarters estimated today.

The new registrants will not be subject to draft for military service, the state headquarters pointed out, but may enlist in the armed forces with the consent of their parents. The state's 330 local draft boards, which handled the other four registrations easily, are expected to take the new registration "in their stride," officials predicted.

The fifth registration also will include youths who have reached the age of 20 since the fourth registration.

Attempt By Hitler's Men To Retake Rostov Area Being Reported

By JAMES E. BROWN
MOSCOW, May 23 — German defense forces at Kharkov were dislodged from several additional strongly fortified positions today as the Red army stepped up its offensive.

While the main Russian forces forged ahead in the titantic drive to retake the city other Soviet units began consolidating strategic positions captured from the Nazis.

Large amounts of military equipment were taken when the Nazis were blasted from a vital stronghold before the city, the Russian high command said.

The Germans were reported thrown back several miles after failure of their attacks on one sub-sector of the Izyum-Barvenkovo front, 70 miles southeast of Kharkov.

Soviet troops were said to have crossed an unnamed river on another sub-sector of the southern front and consolidated captured positions for further operations.

On another sector of the Kharkov front, the noon communique said, a Nazi counter-attack was repelled and 200 Germans killed. War booty and prisoners were said to have been captured.

A German attempt to cross an unnamed river on the southern front was repulsed, the Soviets said. The Germans retreated after losing more than 200 officers and men.

LONDON — Fernand De Brion, envoy of the Vichy government to German authorities in Paris, has demanded that French General Henri Honore Giraud return to prison to prevent reprisals by the Nazis, the Daily Express said today. General Giraud was released from prison in 1940.

WASHINGTON, May 23 — John Doolittle, son of Brig. Gen. James Doolittle, who led the American bombing attack on Tokyo, will follow his father's footsteps in the Army.

Sen. Brown (D) Mich., said today that young Doolittle is now ticketed for the West Point military academy.

John Doolittle, now a freshman at the University of Michigan engineering school, was named to the academy sometime ago by Brown, and now has completed all requirements for entrance.

SOLONS TO BE CALLED

All Guarantees To Citizens Of Nations Fighting U. S., Allies Revoked

MEXICO CITY, May 23 — The Mexican cabinet was informed today by President Manuel Avila Camacho that a state of war exists between Mexico and the axis nations.

President Camacho, at an emergency session of the cabinet, told the members that the axis powers had initiated hostilities against Mexico by attacking and sinking Mexican vessels and taking Mexican lives.

He immediately asked the permanent commission of congress to call a special session of the legislature to receive a request that he be empowered to issue a formal declaration of war against Germany, Italy and Japan.

At a lengthy session of the cabinet last night President Camacho, who earlier had suspended all guarantees to citizens of axis powers and put the country under military control, stated that the nation must defend its honor in view of the attacks which have cost Mexico three ships.

The sinking several days ago of the Mexican tanker Portero Del Llano was followed yesterday by announcement that the tankers Faja De Oro and Tuxpan had been sent to the bottom. The 6,067 ton Faja De Oro went down off the Brazilian coast while the Tuxpan was torpedoed in the Gulf of Mexico off New Orleans.

Attempt By Hitler's Men To Retake Rostov Area Being Reported

By JAMES E. BROWN

MOSCOW, May 23 — German defense forces at Kharkov were dislodged from several additional strongly fortified positions today as the Red army stepped up its offensive.

While the main Russian forces forged ahead in the titantic drive to retake the city other Soviet units began consolidating strategic positions captured from the Nazis.

Large amounts of military equipment were taken when the Nazis were blasted from a vital stronghold before the city, the Russian high command said.

The Germans were reported thrown back several miles after failure of their attacks on one sub-sector of the Izyum-Barvenkovo front, 70 miles southeast of Kharkov.

Soviet troops were said to have crossed an unnamed river on another sub-sector of the southern front and consolidated captured positions for further operations.

On another sector of the Kharkov front, the noon communique said, a Nazi counter-attack was repelled and 200 Germans killed. War booty and prisoners were said to have been captured.

A German attempt to cross an unnamed river on the southern front was repulsed, the Soviets said. The Germans retreated after losing more than 200 officers and men.

Editor's Note: Axis reports said meanwhile that German and Romanian forces had undertaken a new drive along the Taganrog-Rostov railway, in the southeastern Ukraine, apparently aimed at an attempt to recapture Rostov, gateway to the oil-rich Caucasus.

STATE RESERVE JOBS TAKEN BY 25 LEGIONNAIRES

Twenty-five American Legion members from Pickaway county completed their auxiliary patrolman's training Friday evening when they received certificates of appointment to the State reserve that is operating in conjunction with Civilian Defense.

State Legion Commander Floyd Hartpense was principal speaker at last evening's program, discussing the need of the legion patrol and its operation in case of emergency. Working under the Ohio State Highway Patrol the local force is subject to call for duty in case of any emergency that might arise in the city, county or state.

The class which was directed by Corporal N. H. Brunn received arm bands and identification cards at the ceremonies with six members elected as heads of the squad. James Shea, Legion commander, will act as captain. Wilbur Brinker and Cranston McQuay as lieutenants, and E. C. Ebert, Verne Pontius and Harry Timmons as sergeants.

Continued Axis Attacks On Nation's Shipping Blamed For Crucial Step

SOLONS TO BE CALLED

All Guarantees To Citizens Of Nations Fighting U. S., Allies Revoked

MEXICO CITY, May 23 — The Mexican cabinet was informed today by President Manuel Avila Camacho that a state of war exists between Mexico and the axis nations.

President Camacho, at an emergency session of the cabinet, told the members that the axis powers had initiated hostilities against Mexico by attacking and sinking Mexican vessels and taking Mexican lives.

He immediately asked the permanent commission of congress to call a special session of the legislature to receive a request that he be empowered to issue a formal declaration of war against Germany, Italy and Japan.

At a lengthy session of the cabinet last night President Camacho, who earlier had suspended all guarantees to citizens of axis powers and put the country under military control, stated that the nation must defend its honor in view of the attacks which have cost Mexico three ships.

The sinking several days ago of the Mexican tanker Portrero Del Llano was followed yesterday by announcement that the tankers Faja De Oro and Tuxpan had been sent to the bottom. The 6,067 ton Faja De Oro went down off the Brazilian coast while the Tuxpan was torpedoed in the Gulf of Mexico off New Orleans.

Statement Issued
The president's official statement at conclusion of the three-hour cabinet session said:

"Today at 6:45 the presidential cabinet met.

"After deliberating three hours they arrived at the conclusion that by virtue of the aggression of the axis nations of which the country has been a victim, first by the sinking of the Mexican ship Portrero Del Llano, and afterwards by employment of a similar (Continued on Page Eight)

NEED FOR YOUNG MEN STRESSED BY ARMY, NAVY

Pressure For Revision Of Draft Law Growing In Washington

VOLUNTEERS ARE SOUGHT

Selective Service Hints Men With Dependents May Be Called

WASHINGTON, May 23 — Selective Service officials today made plans for registration of 18 and 19-year-old youths on June 30 as congressional sources intimated that the Army and Navy may renew a request for legislative authority to draft them.

Draft military age limits now are from 20 through 44.

President Roosevelt issued a proclamation for registration of 18 and 19-year-old youths, but this admittedly did not in itself forecast a drive for lower age limit for military service. The Draft Act originally contemplated registration of those from 18 to 64.

High Army and Navy officials, however, have emphasized to members of Congress that calling of 18 and 19-year-old youths is desirable, not only to provide necessary training against the future, but because they make the best soldiers.

Extraordinary inducements now are being made both by Army and Navy to attract volunteers from these age groups, especially for the air service. In some instances those who enlist in the reserves are allowed to complete high school.

To Need More Men

Selective Service officials informed the Senate military affairs committee that it will be necessary to call persons with dependents the last of this year, if the Army expansion program is carried out.

Sen. Gurney (R) South Dakota, member of the military affairs committee urged legislation to permit drafting of those of lower ages.

"I'd vote to draft those 18 and 19 because we've got to win the war," said Gurney. "Many of them are not doing any good in school anyway because of disturbed conditions. I am glad they are to be registered. It should have been done long ago."

"In my opinion it is a question of needed man power and not whether those with dependents should be drafted. When the allotment bill is passed, there will be no reason to exempt persons because of dependency if they are in good physical condition and not in war production."

Chairman May (D), Kentucky, of the House military affairs committee, however, opposed lowering of age limits.

"I wouldn't vote for it now but of course if the time comes when we need them I will," said May.

Sen. Hill (D), Alabama, expressed belief that the registration was ordered merely to complete the plan of the Draft Act of making a census of 18-64 man power.

"We would have to be in dire extremities before I would vote to take boys out of school for the Army," said Sen. Thomas (D) Oklahoma.

"I have an open mind on the question," said Rep. Thompson (D) Texas, member of the House military affairs committee. "I don't know what Selective Service will have to say."

WAYNE'S FEVER QUARANTINES AT TOTAL OF SIX

Two more cases of scarlet fever in the Wayne township area were reported Friday by Dr. A. D. Blackburn, county health commissioner. Bringing the total of cases to six, the following were placed under quarantine. Ruby Thompson, 10, daughter of Wilson Thompson, and Robert Greene, 9, son of Royal Greene.

There is no truth in a rumor reported Friday that pupils from Wayne township who travel by bus from the country to Circleville high school had exposed local pupils to the disease. All of these pupils have been examined and no possible cases were found.

However, pupils in the Wayne township grade school have been exposed to the ailment and the school was closed Friday in an effort to prevent any further spreading.

Wilt Resistant Tomatoes

"The Prichard is one of the new wilt resistant tomatoes that we are having a good demand for this Spring" Earl H. Shaffer market Gardner 316 North East street, Hillsboro, recently pointed out.

The Pan American is another one on the market this year, in a very limited way, I am informed.

Mr. Shaffer has a white tomato, too this year, that is a good seller. "It is absolutely free from acid and a splendid tomato for desert and for canning" according to the firm from which Mr. Shaffer buys his seed for his ever increasing plant business.

Other popular tomato varieties, in strong demand every year, and good ones for any garden, are the Break of Day, Beefsteak, Ox Heart and some similar well established varieties.

Sweet Potato Plants

They are about ready to sell as this is written. The Nancy Hall and the Porto Rican, short vining varieties, are always in strong demand. Then there are many customers who like the Jersey, which is a good one, but the vines run all over everything in the garden.

Tomato Pimientos

"They are flat and one of our best sellers" Mr. Shaffer reports.

Vining And Tree Tomatoes

I saw plants of both of them that are in increasing demand every year. If you have only a small space for a garden, get some of the vining varieties, and put them on a high trellis and you will be surprised, and pleased, at how heavy they will yield. Then the tree varieties are well worth trying, in a small way, at least.

Early Potatoes

Most gardeners like to raise early potatoes, but it is sometimes hard to do. I know of one man who was so anxious to have potatoes before his neighbors that he planted the crop deep, and in the late Fall. He got the suggestion by observing volunteer potatoes growing in his garden, from seed that was left when he dug the crop. "And my idea was a good one," he said, "and I think that after this I'll plant a few early potatoes in the late Fall," he continued.

I don't know why it is, but did you ever notice that potatoes that are left in the ground over Winter, grow sooner than those planted in the Spring, even if the planting is done very early? It must be because the water is higher in them, and the dormant buds grow faster, when they get started.

If you have never tried planting early potatoes in the late Fall, for the next year's crop, why not try it this year, in a small way, at least? Be sure to plant the seed deep and don't cut it. It would be a good plan, too, to top dress with straw or well rotted manure, late in the Fall, after freezing weather begins, so as to have some additional protection for the seed.

Watermelons, Muskmelons, and Cucumbers

We used to raise a lot of them on the home farm by following Grandfather's plan, of plowing the ground early, working it down to a fine firm seed bed, digging holes about two feet deep, where we wanted the hills, filling them with well rotted manure to about two inches over them, and then planting the seed rather deep in these hills. Even if we had a drought, that sometimes did great damage to the melon crop, it didn't affect our plantings very much. If it did, we did some irrigating on a few hills, just so as to be sure of having some watermelons, muskmelons and some "pickles" as we three little boys referred to them.

If you have never tried this plan, try it this year. You are sure to have a crop, if you keep the insects off by dusting at intervals of a week or ten days with a powder made by mixing one part of arsenate of lead, and six parts of hydrated lime. Use this often if the rain washes it off, and especially over the hills, for some boring insects are pretty apt to damage the crop, in or near the hills, but if this insecticide is there, their first meal will be a dose of poison, and they will do little or no damage.

Butter Beans

Are you having trouble in getting a stand of butter beans? Many gardeners are, but if you will set the seed edgewise in the ground, with the scar of the seed down, they will be in a good position to push up through the soil, and the stand will be good.

Another way to get a good stand is to plant about three or four times as much seed as you want plants in a hill, and then if the ground "crusts", one plant may not be able to get through, but several plants pushing together have greater lifting power, and are pretty apt to lift the "crust". That's the way cotton raisers make sure that they will have a stand. They plant thick and then chop out the stand to suit them.

Southern Ohio Lumber Crop

T. W. McCall of Hillsboro, who buys and saws a lot of southern Ohio lumber, reports a good business this year, but some of the largest trees he has recently bought were damaged when they were cut, because they stood too long, after the crop ripened. "When a large oak tree begins dying in the top, it might as well be cut, for it will depreciate fast," Mr. McCall says.

I saw some very large poplar, oak and wild cherry in the yard, that would grade A-1 in any market. Southern Ohio can produce hardwood lumber that is not excelled in any section of our great nation. Did you know that?

Interest is again increasing in the lumber crop; wood lots are being thinned, weed trees taken out, and new seedlings planted on many farms. The C. C. C. camps are doing a lot of this work, and it is very good work, too, that is scientifically done.

Contact the nearest camp and ask the superintendent to have one of his foresters go over your farm and make suggestions for improving your timber crop; or write to the experiment station in your state, or contact your county agent, if you have one. This is well worth investigating. Several thousand locust trees were set out on our home farm last year, that are already almost six feet high; and this year 4,000 were planted on our farm, and more will be set out this Spring. It is surprising how soon you will need to thin these plantings, by cutting and selling post timber, or using it on your farm, instead of buying posts, as many county belt farmers are compelled to do.

Most farmers have some waste land that would raise good locust posts or other marketable hardwoods, and it would be wise to plant it to these crops. Then the timber tracts on many farms are sadly neglected and a timber improvement project would be of great help in increasing the timber yield and the inventory value of the farm.

In electrical plants women are working as radio assemblers or armature winders. Some work at engine lathes and milling machines, others as spot welders or airplane coverers.

planeful of them) and flew them out to Java.

Losses are not published, but not for the reason that they are high. On the most important route—the route across the South Atlantic and across Africa—only three planes have been lost since we got into the war (or since the operation began), and the crews of two were saved.

Incidentally, this is the route which supplies planes to four foreign fields of combat. A bunch of pilots at the Florida airfield some fine morning will start asking each other about assignments.

"I'm going to Brereton. Where are you going?"

"Cairo. You, Jack?"

"Iraq."

And a fourth declares his destination as China. The first man means he will take his bomber to Maj. Gen. Lewis H. Brereton in India, the second to the British forces in the Middle East, and the third to the head of the Persian Gulf, where the Russians will take the plane north to the fighting front.

You don't have to be an airline president (like Col. C. R. Smith, ex-American Airlines, now helping Gen. George to run the show) to know it takes more than a dashing young pilot to deliver those planes. There must be landing fields—and some of the new fields have runways a mile or more in length. There must be dispersal areas, to allow planes to scatter when enemy planes appear. There must be fuel supplies and fuel facilities; living quarters for tired transient crews; hospital facilities for the man who has caught a tropical fever; weather stations scattered across the world, and most important of all, protective forces, such as ground troops and fighter planes, which might make it hot for the enemy in case of attack.

As General George puts it, "It takes some planning to think of all these things—including having an American hot dog and an American can of beer ready for the pilot when he drops down out of the skies in the hot jungle of the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan."

The men who fly these ships are the pick of America. They are not all boys. The age range is 21 to 45. All have held from two to six months special training in handling the Army's ships, plus a minimum entrance requirement of 300 hours in the air.

They have, in the course of everyday operations, experiences to write books about. One crew, flying over Africa, attempted to contact a certain station in advance by landing, to get radio bearings. But the station did not respond. This was in October, and the native radio operators were enjoying their "festive" month—feasting all night and sleeping all day.

"CHAMPAGNE, CAVIAR"

It was the AFAFC which carried the Harriman mission to Moscow. Upon arrival, crew members were ushered into the officer's mess and given a breakfast of champagne, Crème de Caviar, caviar, fish, bread, butter, tomato and onion salad, more caviar—and then were asked if they would like a beef steak!

Thus far the big job has been delivering planes—and engines and propellers and quinine and vitamins—to distant parts. But the routes thus explored and the facilities laid down soon will become the means for moving combat forces into the theatres of war. Thus, if it should ever become necessary to make a combat operation against Dakar, U. S. bombing planes could move into action along the well-established route from Florida to Brazil to Africa.

On the domestic side, ferrying sometimes involves an assembling job. A pilot and crew will pick up a B-24 Liberator at the West Coast plant, fly it to Detroit to pick up a British type radio, and equipment for overseas flying.

Administrative costs of the Pickaway County Conservation association for the year 1940 were reported to be 4.6 percent in figures released this week. The organization distributed $265,058 at a total expense of $12,114. The local figures are about one half the average state cost of 9.1 percent, and the lowest in the central Ohio area.

Gross payments and expenses in surrounding communities were recorded as follows: Fairfield county, payments $212,197, expenses for administration $10,718, 5.1 percent expense; Ross county, payments $248,269, costs $14,240, 5.7 percent of expense; Hickocking county, payments $29,852, cost $6,141, 20.6 percent of costs for administration.

TWO ROOM HOME IN CARPERSVILLE HIT BY FLAMES

Firemen answered a blaze Friday evening at the home of W. Lynard Coaltraine, Watt street, at 11:50 p.m. The fire had gained so much headway in the two room dwelling when firemen got there that the building was a total loss. Coaltraine was reading the Bible when warming some food on an oil stove and boiling grease was reported to have started the fire. All contents of the frame structure were destroyed with Robert Wolfe, acting fire chief, estimating damage at $100.

Coaltraine lives in the Carpersville section.

Most of the Ferrying Command's operations are strictly secret. You can't even get into its building in Washington without filling out a special form and having a guard as escort. But it's obvious from what can be told that the Command is making it possible for U. "This do in remembrance of Me."—Luke 22:19.

Thursday: The Last Day With the Disciples

HIGHLIGHTS ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL.
(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for May 24 is Luke 22:7-38, the Golden Text being Luke 22:19. "This do in remembrance of Me.")

THE INCIDENTS in last week's lesson took place on Tuesday before Christ's death. We do not know what He did on the next day, Wednesday. There is no record. He may, and probably did, retire to some quiet spot to commune with His Father and prepare Himself for the dreadful time that was coming.

Thursday, however, was the day of the Passover, and He was with His apostles. This was the commemoration of the night when the first-born of the Egyptians were slain by an angel of the Lord, while the children of the Israelites were spared because of a blood mark on each door. It was called the day of unleavened bread, and the ceremonies attending it were, and still are, performed with much solemnity.

Jesus sent Peter and Paul, saying, "Go and prepare us the passover, that we may eat." When they asked where they would prepare it, He told them they would see a man bearing a pitcher of water on his head. They were to follow him, and when he turned into a house, they were to ask the owner of the house to show them his upper furnished room. There they would eat their passover.

No one knows just where this place was, and some think He chose it so that His enemies (including Judas, whom He knew had sold himself to the evil one and was to betray Him) would not know where the Lord and the 12 would be. The two men did as He said and so the place for the last supper the 12 were to share with their Lord before His death was set. Usually the women of the household drew all the water, but in this particular feast the man of the house was supposed to draw the water with which to mix the unleavened bread.

The Last Supper Is Eaten
When the hour came Jesus sat down and the 12 apostles with Him. "And He said unto them, With desire have I desired to eat this passover with you before I suffer. For I say unto you, I will not any more eat thereof, until it be fulfilled in the kingdom of God."

He then took the cup of wine, gave thanks, and said: "Take this, and divide it among yourselves: For I say unto you, I will not drink of the fruit of the vine, until the kingdom of God shall come."

And He took bread and gave thanks for that also and brake it and gave to them, saying, "This is My body which is given for you: this do in remembrance of Me."

This moment in the life of Jesus on earth is what we think of when we take the sacrament, "in remembrance" of Him in His last day on earth with His chosen friends.

It seems queer to us that these close friends and followers of His did not realize what was so soon to befall their beloved Master. Not even when Jesus said, "But, behold, the hand of him that betrayeth Me is with Me on the table," did they sense the tragedy of the occasion. True, they began to say to themselves, who could it be, and each to question himself as to whether it could possibly be he who would do so dastardly a deed. But the next moment they began to quarrel among themselves as to whom should be thought the greatest among them. Jesus told them that the greatest among them should be the one to serve, as He served. They, however, were appointed to eat and drink at His table in His kingdom and to sit on thrones judging the 12 tribes of Israel.

Peter to Deny Him
The Lord then turned to Peter, and told him that Satan would tempt him, but that He, Jesus, had prayed for him and while he would give way to temptation, he would be converted and would thereafter strengthen his brethren.

Peter protested that he would be ready to go to prison with his Master, and even to die. Can you imagine the sad, sweet smile with which Jesus answered him, saying, "Peter, the cock shall not crow this day, before that thou shalt thrice deny that thou knowest Me."

From this upper room, after this serious but pleasant time, none of the 12 except Judas, possibly, sensing the terrible events to follow, Jesus left to go to Gethsemane and to His death. It was Thursday, April 6, A. D. 30.

YOUTH FELLOWSHIP UNIT TO MEET SUNDAY AT 6:30

Thursday—Last Day With Disciples

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Luke 22:7-38.

On the day of the Passover, Jesus sent Peter and John to buy a man bearing a pitcher of water. In an upper room of the house he entered, they should prepare the Passover.

When all sat at table in the upper room, Jesus took bread, brake it, and gave to His disciples, saying, "This is My body, which is given for you: this do in remembrance of Me."

After supper He took the cup of wine, gave thanks for it, and said, "This cup is the new testament in My blood, which is shed for you," and He handed it to them.

After the food had been eaten and the wine drunk, Jesus said to His disciples, "But, behold, the hand of him that betrayeth Me is with Me on the table." (GOLDEN TEXT—Luke 22:19.)

Thursday—Last Day With Disciples

On the day of the Passover, Jesus sent Peter and John to follow a man bearing a pitcher of water. In an upper room of the house he entered, they should prepare the Passover.

When all sat at table in the upper room, Jesus took bread, brake it, and gave to His disciples, saying, "This is My body, which is given for you; this do in remembrance of Me."

After supper He took the cup of wine, gave thanks for it, and said, "This cup is the new testament in My blood, which is shed for you; this do in remembrance of Me."

After the food had been eaten and the wine drunk, Jesus said to His disciples, "But, behold, the hand of him that betrayeth Me is with Me on the table." (GOLDEN TEXT—Luke 22:19)

Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

BY DREW PEARSON AND ROBERT S. ALLEN

FERRYING COMMAND

(The Washington Merry-Go-Round today awards its famous brass ring to Brig. Gen. Harold L. George, chief of the Ferrying Command and to all the men who are delivering U. S. planes across the seven seas.)

WASHINGTON—When you mention the ferrying command to Gen. H. A. "Happy" Arnold, his Irish face lights up. "There's a real story for you," he says.

What the Air corps chief refers to is not only the efficient manner in which U. S. airplanes are being rushed to the far-flung fighting fronts, but to the pioneering possibilities for future peace. For out of the tragic destruction of war, out of the tons of steel sent daily to the ocean's bottom, out of the cities wrecked and lives lost, will come a great forward thrust for aviation—a network of airlines spanning the world like a spiderweb.

For today the Air Forces Air Ferrying Command (AFAFC) is conducting operations on a larger scale than all the civilian airlines of the United States put together. And in a few months, when present plans are completed, its operations will be ten times larger than all the civil airlines of the world before the war began.

Headquarters of this giant network is a temporary wooden structure near the Lincoln Memorial, with maps as big as a barn, housing the offices of Brig. Gen. Harold L. George, commander of the Ferrying Command.

"We are not only the arsenal," Sen. George will tell you on the rare occasion when you can get him alone for a moment; "we are transport agent for the world. We are picking up planes in California and putting them down a few days later in Libya, Persia, India, Australia, Alaska, Russia, Great Britain—anyplace you want to name."

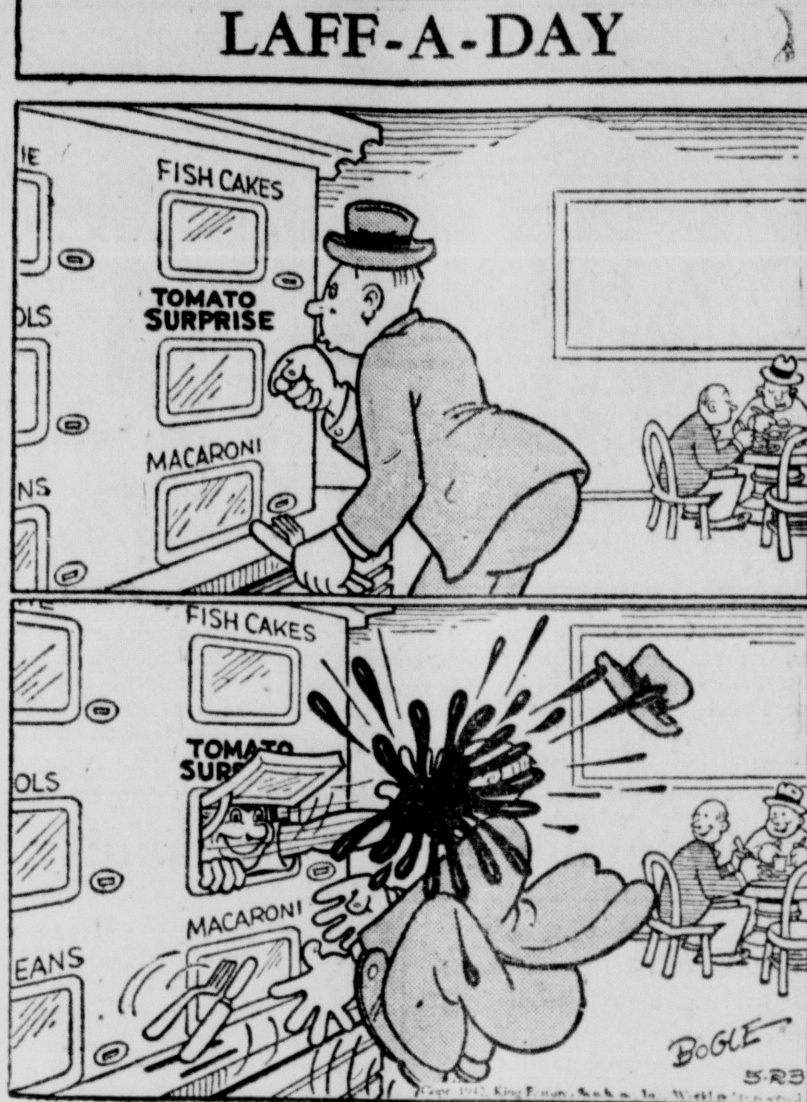

"Our operations offices are scattered from here to the ends of the earth. No airline was ever conceived on such a scale. And after the war—well! that's something to think about."

3300 PLANES A MONTH

The principal job of the Ferrying Command is to pick up airplanes at the factories and fly them to tactical units in the United States, to U. S. combat forces abroad, or to allied countries under Lend-Lease. According to figures disclosed by Speaker of the House Sam Rayburn, U. S. factories are producing 3300 planes a month. Except for the small Navy quota and trainers, the AFAFC handles them all.

A lesser job, but more publicized, is the job of flying "big shots" around the world. When Ambassador Winant and Admiral Stark went to London last month, the Ferrying Command took them across. When Bill Bullitt went to Cairo and Syria last fall, the AFAFC sent Lieut. Ben Funk and crew in a big bomber which, incidentally, travelled 88,000 miles, or 3 1/2 times around the world, before it got back to the United States. It delivered Bullitt, then proceeded to the war areas, where Funk carried Wavell from Java to Rangoon and back, flew Brett from Java to Australia and back, then flew into the Philippines at night to pick up some airplane technicians (more than a proper (Continued on Page Two))

Relation of Longevity To a Family's History

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

THE OLD question of the relative importance of heredity and environment in relation to longevity and disease will probably never be settled by statistics. It is too complicated a problem and too many elements enter into it for that.

The Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, for instance, has recently published a study from which they conclude that a good environment seems to be of greater weight than long-lived parents in determining the individual's prospect for long life. But it takes a good deal of interpretation of their statistics to work out the conclusion.

Most Important Factor
Anybody who has lived as long as I have must be pretty well convinced that longevity in parents is the most important factor in the longevity of individuals. But, of course, there are exceptions. I know of a number of families in which I know the parents have lived to a very ripe age, but several of the children have died of entirely intercurrent disease. For instance, in one such family one child died of pneumonia and one child died of hemorrhage from an ulcer of the stomach. Three others are still alive and look as if they are going to attain the same age as their parents.

The pneumonia and the hemorrhage were simply accidents on the road of life which have no hereditary implications at all. Certainly nobody inherits pneumonia, and it is very doubtful whether ulcer is hereditary. If these two children who were dead were the only children in the family and you based the conclusions entirely on statistics, you would be forced to conclude that parents who lived over the age of 80 would have children who did not attain the age of 45.

Statistics on Mortality
The Metropolitan statistics show that the lowest mortality in a group of policy holders was recorded for those, both of whose parents were living when the insurance was issued. This group have a mortality which is 12 per cent below the ordinary average. The policy holders who had the highest mortality were those, both of whose parents were dead when the policy was issued.

This would seem to indicate that heredity had a good deal to do with it. But when the groups were examined with respect to the age attained by their parents, there was no relation between that age and the age of death of their children. Of course, there are many reasons why a person whose parents lived until he was old enough to take out a life insurance policy should attain a high age.

Orphanhood has a detrimental and lasting effect on the health of young people. The children in broken families are more poorly housed, fed and clothed and receive less medical attention than other children. More of them are compelled to go to work at young ages and therefore at unskilled jobs.

Conclusions Hard To Accept
It is difficult for me to accept the conclusions of the Metropolitan. I have seen too much to the contrary and when you get away from long lines of statistics and actually see families that you know, you are convinced that heredity is the most important factor in longevity.

The difference between the statistician and a family doctor is the same as that between a man in an airplane, who soars over a community and sees thousands of people from far off, and one who lives in one place and gets to know all the neighbors from the time of birth to the time of death.

Answers: It always means that the ear drum is perforated. The condition merits immediate attention by the best practitioner who can be obtained.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clending has seven pamphlets which can be obtained by readers. Each pamphlet sells for 10 cents. For any one pamphlet desired, send 10 cents in coin, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clending, in care of this paper. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks' Reducing Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of the Care of the Hair and Skin."

Dr. Clending will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

If these two children who were dead were the only children in the family and you based the conclusions entirely on statistics, you would be forced to conclude that parents who lived over the age of 80 would have children who did not attain the age of 45.

Statistics on Mortality
The Metropolitan statistics show that the lowest mortality in a group of policy holders was recorded for those, both of whose parents were living when the insurance was issued. This group have a mortality which is 12 per cent below the ordinary average. The policy holders who had the highest mortality were those, both of whose parents were dead when the policy was issued.

This would seem to indicate that heredity had a good deal to do with it. But when the groups were examined with respect to the age attained by their parents, there was no relation between that age and the age of death of their children. Of course, there are many reasons why a person whose parents lived until he was old enough to take out a life insurance policy should attain a high age.

CHAPTER THIRTY

WHEN WAYNE told Tibby that he had bought the beautiful silver ship that she was flying just for her, that she could have it, and him—if only she were willing, Tibby was so stunned that she could not possibly answer. He had said, "You know that, don't you, my dear—that that is what I want?" But she had not known. She had guessed, of course, that their friendship might lead to something more; Wayne had suggested that, but he had spoken of it as in the far-away future. Tibby could not know that he had not meant it to come this soon, either. He had not even meant to speak so soon, while they still were high up in that dark sky, among the stars, but he had spoken, so now she must give him some answer.

"Aren't you going to answer me?" he said, leaning toward her, trying to see the look in her eyes. "Have you nothing to say, my dear?" His tone now was gently reproving. After all, he had proposed marriage to her, a hostess in his company, a little girl from nowhere practically. Fanatic still, when one thought of it in that plain way.

Tibby said, "I can't answer. Not right away. You've given me too many surprises this evening." That must be it, for all she felt yet was that stunned silence. If Wayne were the one, the only one, wouldn't she feel more? Wouldn't delight fill her heart, joy and ecstasy her soul?

"You realize—I hope—that I have asked you to be my wife?" Tibby said. "I can't answer. Not right away. You've given me too many surprises this evening." That must be it, for all she felt yet was that stunned silence. If Wayne were the one, the only one, wouldn't she feel more? Wouldn't delight fill her heart, joy and ecstasy her soul?

"Why shouldn't I? I want to give you things, everything your heart desires," Wayne said. "I can, you know," he added. That should count for something, even if she did not love him, for now he knew that she did not. That was another hurt that did not matter, my dear," he told her, "whether you love me now or not, if only you'll promise, at least, to think it over."

Wayne Courtright was begging, pleading with this girl at his side, this girl with her head in the clouds, flying the silver ship, thrilling only to that. It was indeed fantastic. Now he realized that he could not appeal to her as one might to a child. She did not care for all the things his money could buy her. She was not like other women in that—Steen again, for instance. She wanted something more, something that all the money in the world, all the background and heritage could not give. That, he realized further, was why he loved her.

"I . . . I'll try," Tibby said. She wished she could promise to think it over, giving him hope that she would give the answer he wanted. Maybe it did not matter whether she loved him or not, or was certain. Maybe your heart did not tell you, maybe, as Wayne was thinking, she demanded too much.

"That's all I ask," Wayne said, although of course it wasn't, but he supposed I have given you too many surprises. I hoped they would be pleasant ones. You like the ship, don't you, my dear?" He did not realize that he said that as one might in appealing to a child. In effect, "See the pretty toy I have brought you. You like it, don't you? Therefore, you must like me."

"Of course," Tibby's answer, even to this, was brief, reluctant. Perhaps she felt now that it must hold reservations. Wayne had said he had bought the ship for her. You could not accept such a wonderful gift, enthrall over it, if you felt you might not be able to keep it.

"If you don't want it," Wayne said, still as one would to that difficult child, "I shan't keep it. That was the arrangement."

"Oh, but you shouldn't have," Tibby protested. She meant that it had not been quite fair to count on her acceptance of such a gift; on her acceptance of himself, which was what was implied. She had agreed to be friends, but she had not given him any reason to feel that she could give him more than friendship. She had come to like him, to admire him very much. She found him exciting, but she was not at all sure that that was love. No, even though Tommy had said that the person one loved must be exciting, not someone well known and familiar. Why should she think of Tommy now?

"Why shouldn't I? I want to give you things, everything your heart desires," Wayne said. "I can, you know," he added. That should count for something, even if she did not love him, for now he knew that she did not. "That's all I ask," Wayne said, although of course it wasn't, but he supposed I have given you too many had to be satisfied with it, with such a tiny morsel. Because, he wasn't satisfied he said now, "You know, though, my dear, that you cannot keep me wondering forever. You must tell me as soon as you can. You must make up your mind." Therein, after all, did lie a bigger hope to cling to. She had not refused him. She had not said she could not come to care for him. If she had not said yes, she had not said no.

"I will," Tibby said. As soon as she could, although she had hoped to postpone all thoughts of love, of marriage, for a long, long while. It seemed that people fell in love whether they wanted to or not, whether they wanted them to or not, either. She had hoped, one day, to have someone fall in love with her as Wayne had now, wildly, irrevocably. She had wanted a "Great Love." So she had thought that night when Tommy had proposed to her, only to withdraw it almost immediately. In weighing the love he had offered her, she had found it lacking because there had been no romance with it. Well, now there was romance enough, surely, flying high up in the dark clouds, with billions of twinkling stars all around, and beneath, other twinkling lights of the earth, the glimmering reflections, with the moon full and bright for added measure.

Why, she had even dreamed of someone like Wayne to complete the picture, someone strange and dark and exciting! He was all of that and more. He was the sort of man any girl might dream of, wish to come riding, as the fairy books of old would have phrased it. Only this was a modern fairy tale, the rich man proposing to this Cinderella, offering to fulfill all her heart's desires, giving her a beautiful silver ship to fly, laying his heart at her feet high up in the sky.

Wouldn't she be a very foolish girl indeed to refuse so much, to ask for more? She ought not even need time to think it over. She ought to grasp at the chance with greedy fingers. Her heart ought to leap with joy, instead of still being filled with doubts and questions and evasions, instead of going on in its lonely search.

There was no one else. Probably no one else ever would come into her life, certainly no one who would give her more in every way, romance included, than Wayne. Tommy was only the past, a childhood memory, no longer even that old playmate with whom she had shared so much.

Yes, Tibby would be a very foolish girl, indeed, if she did not tell Wayne—and very soon—that she would marry him.

Since her heart, and her good common sense as well, told her that much, maybe it was answering all the rest along with it. Maybe it HAD spoken at last.

ALTHOUGH ASTUTENESS, public prestige or well-organized strategies may be implements of last resort, to be called upon when irregular or normal tactics seem to prove futile, on the whole it may be a difficult day for putting over important projects, either of a personal or business nature. There may be all sorts of conflicts, with sudden reversals as well as deep-seated sources for defeat.

Those whose birthday it is may have a fairly active and enterprising year with new and important projects receiving a moderate degree of impetus from skillful preparation of proper plans and constructive programs. The latter may call for the agreement or corroboration of influential persons, and may not be so sure of public assistance or approval. Much depends on personal effort.

ly. But Earl wasn't ordinary. He was a very prominent American Communist, his cult's recognized leader in the United States. He ran three times for president on its ticket.

Times Were Different

Well, as previously remarked, it was downright awful to be a Communist in that era. Joe Stalin was regarded as a world peril, not only on his own account, but also because his government was hooked up by treaty, with Herr Hitler's.

Then, as now, Representative Martin Dies' congressional committee on investigation of un-American activities in our midst, was feverishly busy. Martin was more anti-Communist than any other one thing. Some folk thought that he concentrated on Communism a trifle negligently of Nazism and Fascism. Still, it generally was agreed that he might be right in rooting out the Communists 100 per cent first and letting the others wait until he could get around to 'em.

Naturally the initial step was to pin a case on Earl Browder, the boss Communist in the western hemisphere.

To say that his record was examined under a microscope a to express it mildly. I don't say that he didn't have coming what followed. All I do allege is that he was trailed less because somebody was trying to catch him than to catch him nefarious in SOMETHING.

UNDEPENDABLE ALLIES

IF THE Germans are putting Italians, Hungarians, Romanians and Bulgarians into the front lines in Russia, they had better beware. They would do well to take counsel from the experience, in the last war, that the allies had with the Portuguese.

Pressed for men, as there are signs that the Germans are getting to be now, the allies allowed the Portuguese to take over a sector of the western front. Under the German attack of March, 1918, they melted away like wax in a candle, and endangered the entire allied line.

It was not that the Portuguese were less brave than the English or the French. They are as brave as other men. They are noted as sailors and fishermen, occupations in which no coward can thrive. But they were less well trained than the French or British; and situated remotely as Portugal is from the main struggle, they may have felt that this was not their fight.

Hating the Nazis as all Europeans do, even their allies, the lesser members of the Axis are likely to prove decidedly bruised reeds to lean upon. For the Germans to use them at the front will be a measure of desperation.

SHAW'S CREED

BERNARD Shaw, the great Irish playwright, is sometimes accused of being contrary, like the little boy of whom it was said, "He only does it to annoy. Because he knows it teases." There is nothing, however, of this spirit in one of his latest utterances, which all might take to heart. He says:

"I am convinced that my life belongs to the whole community, and as long as I live, it is my privilege to do for it whatever I can; for the harder I work, the more I live. I rejoice in life for its own sake. Life is no brief candle for me. It is a sort of splendid torch which I got hold of for a moment, and I want to make it burn as brightly as possible before turning it over to future generations."

DOG-WALKING

THE employees of a large city apartment hotel have gone on strike. One horrifying consequence has been announced. The tenants will have to walk their own dogs around. Almost every apartment has one, mostly of the Pekinese or Pomeranian size; and apparently it was the well-tipped duty of the bellboys to take them out for daily airings. So general was this practice that the hotel had to hire extra bellboys, to make sure that the dogs were not neglected. Now this crushing burden is laid upon the owners.

Times of war are times of hardship indeed. These sequestered hotel residents are just finding it out.

Nazi offensives never end; everything about the Nazis is offensive.

Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

BY DREW PEARSON AND ROBERT S. ALLEN

FERRYING COMMAND

(The Washington Merry-Go-Round today awards its famous brass ring to Brig. Gen. Harold L. George, chief of the Ferrying Command and to all the men who are delivering U. S. planes across the seven seas.)

WASHINGTON—When you mention the ferrying command to Gen. H. A. "Happy" Arnold, his Irish face lights up. "There's a real story for you," he says.

What the Air corps chief refers to is not only the efficient manner in which U. S. airplanes are being rushed to the far-flung fighting fronts, but to the pioneering possibilities for future peace. For out of the tragic destruction of war, out of the tons of steel sent daily to the ocean's bottom, out of the cities wrecked and lives lost, will come a great forward thrust for aviation—a network of airlines spanning the world like a spiderweb.

For today the Air Forces Air Ferrying Command (AFAFC) is conducting operations on a larger scale than all the civilian airlines of the United States put together. And in a few months, when present plans are completed, its operations will be ten times larger than all the civil airlines of the world before the war began.

Headquarters of this giant network is a temporary wooden structure near the Lincoln Memorial, with maps as big as a barn, housing the offices of Brig. Gen. Harold L. George, commander of the Ferrying Command.

"We are not only the arsenal," Sen. George will tell you on the rare occasion when you can get him alone for a moment; "we are transport agent for the world. We are picking up planes in California and putting them down a few days later in Libya, Persia, India, Australia, Alaska, Russia, Great Britain—anyplace you want to name."

"Our operations offices are scattered from here to the ends of the earth. No airline was ever conceived on such a scale. And after the war—well! that's something to think about."

3300 PLANES A MONTH

The principal job of the Ferrying Command is to pick up airplanes at the factories and fly them to tactical units in the United States, to U. S. combat forces abroad, or to allied countries under Lend-Lease. According to figures disclosed by Speaker of the House Sam Rayburn, U. S. factories are producing 3300 planes a month. Except for the small Navy quota and trainers, the AFAFC handles them all.

A lesser job, but more publicized, is the job of flying "big shots" around the world. When Ambassador Winant and Admiral Stark went to London last month, the Ferrying Command took them across. When Bill Bullitt went to Cairo and Syria last fall, the AFAFC sent Lieut. Ben Funk and crew in a big bomber which, incidentally, travelled 88,000 miles, or 3½ times around the world, before it got back to the United States. It delivered Bullitt, then proceeded to the war areas, where Funk carried Wavell from Java to Rangoon and back, flew Brett from Java to Australia and back, then flew into the Philippines at night to pick up some airplane technicians (more than a proper (Continued on Page Two)

Relation of Longevity To a Family's History

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

THE OLD question of the relative importance of heredity and environment in relation to longevity and disease will probably never be settled by statistics. It is too complicated a problem and too many elements enter into it for that.

The Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, for instance, has recently published a study from which they conclude that a good diet below the ordinary average. The policy holders who had the highest mortality were those, both of whose parents were dead when the policy was issued.

This would seem to indicate that heredity had a good deal to do with it. But when the groups were examined with respect to the age attained by their parents, there was no relation between that age and the age of death of their children. Of course, there are many reasons why a person whose parents lived until he was old enough to take out a life insurance policy should attain a high age.

Orphanhood has a detrimental and lasting effect on the health of young people. The children in broken families are more poorly housed, fed and clothed and receive less medical attention than other children. More of them are compelled to go to work at young ages and therefore at unskilled jobs.

Most Important Factor

Anybody who has lived as long as I have must be pretty well convinced that longevity in parents is the most important factor in the longevity of individuals. But, of course, there are exceptions. I know of a number of families in which I know the parents have lived to a very ripe age, but several of the children have died of entirely intercurrent disease. For instance, in one such family one child died of pneumonia and one child died of hemorrhage from an ulcer of the stomach. Three others are still alive and look as if they are going to attain the same age as their parents.

The pneumonia and the hemorrhage were simply accidents on the road of life which have no hereditary implications at all. Certainly nobody inherits pneumonia, and it is very doubtful whether ulcer is hereditary. If these two children who were dead were the only children in the family and you based the conclusions entirely on statistics, you would be forced to conclude that parents who lived over the age of 80 would have children who did not attain the age of 45.

Statistics on Mortality
The Metropolitan statistics show that the lowest mortality in a group of policy holders was recorded for those, both of whose parents were living when the insurance was issued. This group have a mortality which is 12 per

"You realize—I hope—that I have asked you to be my wife?" He roared as dominant in his tone as before. He wished she would look at him, not keep her eyes on the controls, her mind on them, too, he felt. If only she would look at him, think about him. . . . That was her way, always to hold herself separate, never to give herself, or any small part. And that, of course, was why he must have her. Steena now—why should he think of her at this time?—she had given her mind, her heart, even her kisses willingly enough. She would have had a ready answer, realizing the momentousness of this high moment. He had not been fooled by the beautiful Steena's cleverness. Had she been really clever, she would have put a higher value on her kisses. Odd, for she, though a hostess, too, in Wayne's company, had a background and moneyed connections that Tibby could not claim. Steena Winters would have made a more fitting wife for Wayne Courtwright, but it was Tibby Lane he wanted. She had to have.

There was no sense to love, Wayne decided, even as Tibby had before him. There was no rhyme, or reason. "You don't have to answer me right away," he said to Tibby now, but he was hurt that she didn't. "I suppose I have given you too many surprises. I hoped they would be pleasant ones. You like the ship, don't you, my dear?" He did not realize that he said that as one might in appealing to, in trying to buy the affection of a child. In effect, "See how pretty I have bought you. You like it, don't you? Therefore, you must like me."

"Of course," Tibby's answer, even to this, was brief, reluctant. Perhaps she felt now that it must hold reservations. Wayne had said he had bought the ship for her. You could not accept such a wonderful gift, enthuse over it, if you felt you might not be able to keep it.

"If you don't want it," Wayne said, still as one would to that difficult child, "I shan't keep it. That was the arrangement."

"It doesn't matter, my dear," he told her, "whether you love me now or not, if only you'll marry me, if only you'll promise, at least, to think it over."

Wayne Courtwright was begging, pleading with this girl at his side, this girl with her head in the clouds, flying the silver ship, thrilling only to that. It was indeed fantastic. Now he realized that he could not appeal to her as one might to a child. She did not care for all the things his money could buy her. She was not like other women in that—Steena again, for instance. ALTHOUGH ASTUTENESS, public prestige or well-organized strategies may be implements of last resort, to be called upon when regular or normal tactics seem to prove futile, on the whole it may be a difficult day for putting over important projects, either of a personal or business nature. There may be all sorts of conflicts, antagonisms and treacheries, with sudden reversals as well as deep-seated sources for defeat.

Those whose birthday it is may be ready for a year in which they may have to draw on their hidden resources, exceptional talents or possibilities for strategies, intrigue and the security of public confidence or popularity, as such may be needed to combat antagonisms, compose difficulties and survive sudden as well as secret blows or reversals. Shrewdness, tact as well as emotional balance and sound physical and mental condition may ultimately win over deceit, confusion and chaos.

A child born on this day should have the benefit of early direction and safeguarding of its emotional, mental and physical solidarity in order to meet with fortitude sudden reversals or blows in life.

The newcomer also must live in a Swiss city for three months before receiving tickets that will enable him to buy clothing.

Novelty for a Classic

Note the fastening high to the throat, and the fabric buttons on this suit. Slender sleeves also give it individual expression.

VARIATIONS on the tailored suit are few, and many of them, alas, were better never attempted. But here is a suit made of familiar Glen Urquart plaid, in which the usual procedure of cutting the skirt on the bias and the jacket on the straight of the weave has been arrestingly reversed.

The skirt of this suit carries a 1942 dateline, too, in that although it hangs narrow and straight, it has a slight fullness at its center front.

It is shown here as a complete costume for chilly weather in anything short of a blizzard, ensembled with a billiard table green wool top coat, and a kepi made of its own fabric. The suit itself is a real spring item.

Mrs. Paul McGinnis of near Kingston visited Friday with friends in Circleville.

ASHVILLE

Despite a steady drizzle of "liquid sunshine," Friday's last day of school was somewhat of a success as several hundred students, parents and others were treated to "harvest rations" in a very auspicious closing ceremony, marking the end of the school year of 1941-42.

While the noon-day picnic dinner was one of the highlights, it had to share the spotlight with the Eighth grade promotion exercises which took place at 10 a. m. The Rev. Dwight Woodworth of the Methodist church gave the commencement address to a good-sized crowd of listeners and C. A. Higley, representing the board of education, presented the graduates with their certificates which qualify them to enter any high school in the state.

Preceding the commencement program, teachers met with their classes and handed out the final report cards and other special awards earned by the students.

With the filing of weekly, monthly, and annual reports, register sheets, and various other data with the superintendent, the teachers prepared to take a much deserved respite from the class high school tenure. Silver pins, emblematic of fifty-five words per minute speed in typewriting, were received by Erma Ruth Bowers and Mary Jane Higley. Many members of the graduating class received award pins and certificates of proficiency in typewriting. Seven members of the class received awards from Mr. Brobst of the Music department for the completion of the two-year course in instrumental music.

The meeting at the school building for organizing classes in the ladies' school of nursing, was quite well attended and 50 of the 60 desired members for the forming of three classes of twenty each, were enrolled. The remaining ten easily will be secured, they told us. The first class of twenty under instruction of Mrs. William Fischer, Jr., will make its start in the school building at 2:30 o'clock next Tuesday afternoon. The others will begin soon. Miss Ann Reber is instructing a class of thirty-six members in first aid work at Walnut school and by some time during the coming week the course will be completed, she told us yesterday evening.

Madge Hines, 10-year-old daughter of Mrs. Maude Hines at Duval, fell Thursday evening from a school swing and fractured her ankle.

That Circleville high school band as music goes, is good, its showmanship fine, but as rain makers, it's a scream. Wednesday evening it rained, Friday it poured most of the day, both times prevented from appearing at the park with concert and show. It always has quit raining and may this time, and then we'll be having that entertainment. So "all is well that ends well," they say. But from now on, when rain is needed, we'll know for sure what to do about it, that super high school band will be on schedule for Ashville—no charges.

Ashville
Up to the time of the graduation of the Ashville high school seniors, including that of 1923, there had been 265 graduates. Beginning with the class of 1924, the total number, including this present class, will be given now one of these days soon.

In the final report of War Stamps and Bonds in the Ashville school, the last entry shows an amount of $534.75. The sale began on February 3 and closed May 18.

The Sixth grade bought more stamps and bonds than any other grade in the school, their total amounting to $144.05 and included one $100 bond and one $25 bond.

Eighth grade came in second in stamp and bond purchases and the total for that grade was $118.55. This accounted for the greatest number of 25 cent stamps—179 of them.

The First grade took third place in the sale, buying one $25 bond and stamps which shows a combined total of $63.40.

The other grades of the school finished in this order: Fourth, fourth; Second, fifth; Twelfth, sixth; Fifth, seventh; Eleventh, eighth; Third, ninth; Tenth, tenth; Ninth, eleventh; Seventh, twelfth.

ALONG WITH JOY ARE HARBINGERS OF FINAL EXAMS

What the heck! Right in the middle of Spring fever season, we have to start reviewing for final exams. Besides that, we're tortured by knowing that the township schools have, as that childish saying goes, "let the monkeys out."

It's not so bad though, 'cause, gee, there are only 10 days of school left. That's something to look forward to. If you could see a pupil approach a calendar each day and tear vigorously at the numeral representing the day before, you might think him nuts, but he's only keeping track of the remainder.

Regular classes will meet Wednesday morning, May 27, except for Latin II whose examination begins at nine o'clock. Wednesday afternoon and all day Thursday, May 27 and 28, will be devoted to exams. All persons not having a test is requested to remain away from the building. Regular classes will resume Friday morning.

SEXTETTE SINGS AT NELSONVILLE

Once more the Kiwanette sextette of the high school had an opportunity to perform for an out of town organization. Members of the Kiwanis club, the sextette's sponsor, took the girls and Miss Marjorie Vorhees, vocal music instructor, to Nelsonville, Tuesday, where they sang for the club of that city.

The girls sang the following selections: "In My Garden" by Firestone, "Cradle Song" by Kreisler, "When Day Is Done" by Katscher, "Deep in My Heart" by Romberg, "My Hero" by Strauss and "The World Is Waiting for the Sunrise" by Ernest.

Those who are arranging the annual alumni banquet in Nelsonville have asked the sextette to return to Nelsonville on May 28 to sing at this large affair. The girls are also planning to visit Newark at a future date.

B ACCALAUREATE WILL BE MAY 31

As the school year draws to a close the seniors are getting ready for the big event, Commencement. The Baccalaureate service will be on May 31 at the Presbyterian church. The Rev. Robert T. Kelsey will deliver the sermon.

On Tuesday, June 2, the girl grads will be honored at a dinner by the Business and Professional Women's club.

Commencement, the final get-together for the class of 1942, will be on Wednesday, June 3, in the high school auditorium. Dr. Ganse Little of Broad street Presbyterian church, Columbus, will address the class.

Junior Girl Reserves installed new officers, heard the treasurer's report and instructed these officers in their duties, at their regular meeting.

These officers are Eleanor Mast, president; Maxine Friedman, vice-president; Anne Moeller, secretary, and Frances Meinfelter, treasurer.

EDITORIAL

MORALE

As I sit here thinking about the subject on which I should choose to write, I gaze at the two posters at the front of the study hall. I've seen them before—in store windows, everywhere. But this is the first time I've noticed them in the school. They read "Young men, 18 to 26 inclusive." These posters are announcing that high school graduates can "fly with the Navy" or "Join the Army air cadets."

To a boy in high school this must be a great inducement—to read those signs in your school room. To me, as a girl, it is terrifying—to think of my classmates going off to war.

I continue my thoughts—thinking how important morale is in this crisis. Each and everyone of us must do his part now, when our own nation is at war and when everywhere every one is surrounded by the terrors of a world gone mad.

We, behind the lines, must carry on. It is up to us to help our neighbor carry on. If the nation behind the Army, Navy, and Marines cannot revive their morale, our fighting forces cannot be expected to carry on.

Some say that entertainment has no place in time of war. But I believe it has. Our success in our fight depends on the people—those who carry on.

—A Junior

As a part of "carrying on" we are asked to buy United States War Bonds and Stamps. Let's cooperate. At this time there can be no better investment made.

"COUNTY EDITOR" COMMENDS PLAY

Perhaps some of you heard the "County Editor's Chair" broadcast over WBNS Sunday, May 10. If not let us quote an excerpt from that program.

"Circleville high school presented its annual senior play 'Smilin' Through,' not so long ago with great success, according to the Daily Herald of that city. Under the direction of dramatics coach, Samuel R. Johnson, the cast came through with a splendid piece of entertainment. The cast included Mary Lou Kochheiser, Harry Clifton, William Burget, Marcella Cunningham, Jean Imler, Glen Barnhart, Lillian Thompson, Robert Goeller and Robert Kline.

H. S. PUPILS SEE DEFENSE FILMS

Wednesday morning, third period, the students of Circleville high school gathered in the auditorium for a picture show. The films were distributed by the United States Signal Corps for the purpose of educating the public and also the army on the subject of first aid.

The first reel of film dealt with first aid to be rendered in case of injuries and accidents. The second concerned chemical warfare. In it the pupils saw how efficiently the army's medical corps operated.

MASON RANKS SEVENTH IN SCHOLARSHIP TEST

According to a corrected list of rankings received in the principal's office this week, Jerald Mason received seventh place instead of fourteenth in the geometry test at Ohio State university, May 4.

SUBSTITUTE TEACHERS

Miss Reba Lee substituted for Miss Eleanor Ryan last Monday when the latter was absent because of illness. While Miss Margaret Rooney chaperoned the annual E. M. S. educational tour in Columbus Wednesday, Mrs. G. D. Phillips met her classes.

NEW REFERENCE SET, HISTORICAL BOOKS RECEIVED

Last week the library received a thirty volume set of the "Encyclopedia Americana." This set is the 1941 edition and should be of considerable help to the students. Each year a yearbook will be sent to the library, keeping the encyclopedia up-to-date.

Child Conservation league presented to the library "Pattern of Mexico," by Clifford Gessler. This book gives an interesting account of life in Mexico. "Ohio in Homespun and Calico," by I. T. Frary, was also presented to the library by the league.

Miss Florence Brown contributed "The Military History of Ohio," which is a very valuable addition to our collection in Ohio history. The book club of which Miss Elma Rains is a member presented a copy of "The Loon Feather," an interesting account of Indian life.

We are indebted to Mrs. Press Hosler for contributing to the library a complete set of Charles Dickens' writings.

A balance of $1.50, which remained after all expenses of the high school faculty party were paid, was given to Miss Gretchen Moeller, school librarian, by the chairman of the committee, to buy a new book for the library.

HI-Y CERTIFICATE DECORATES HALL

In the upper hall of the high school, the walls are decorated with banners of intramural victories years ago, the Declaration of Independence and now, a certificate of membership of the local Hi-Y club to the national fellowship.

White Hi-Y and Torch emblems on orange, form the background. At the top in large print is written: "The Hi-Y Fellowship of the Young Men's Christian Association of the United States."

Beneath this is the nucleus—"This is to certify that Circleville Hi-Y, having been accepted the national purpose—to create, maintain and extend throughout the school and community, high standards of Christian character—and having fulfilled other requirements, is recognized as a participant in the Hi-Y fellowship of the United States."

Each member of the club received a card allowing him special privileges at all Y. M. C. A. institutions.

CLUB MEMBERS MEET AT CAMP

Members of the Stooge club had an outing at Turney Weldon's camp Tuesday. After eating their light lunches, a few of the more hardy members went swimming while others climbed cliffs. As soon as darkness and fatigue overcame them, the boys settled down and held their regular business meeting. The club discussed plans for next year and also talked over their election of an adviser for that year. Stooge's present adviser, J. L. Chilcote Jr., expects to enter Uncle Sam's service soon.

Samuel Johnson has invited the club to his home in Walnut township to have its next meeting. As yet final arrangements have not been made for the affair.

CHS HI-Y MEETS AT GOLD CLIFF

Members of the Circleville Hi-Y club met at Gold Cliff park last Monday and most of them began a game of baseball. Others went rifle shooting or fishing.

Intentions, when the outing was planned, were to have recreation until meeting time at eight o'clock. However, the boys were scattered far and wide over the park and elsewhere, so the meeting was omitted.

RESERVES POSTPONE MEETING UNTIL MONDAY

Due to a conflicting event on Thursday the Senior Girl Reserve meeting will be Monday at 4:15. At this time the installation of officers will take place.

CO-EDITORS APPOINTED

Julius Nash and Jerald Mason are now the first co-editors of the '41-42 Red and Black. These boys will continue to edit the paper until the end of the school year.

With the curtailing of automobile travel this Summer, time which some teachers used for this recreation will necessarily be used in other ways. Some teachers are planning to help out on farms and in factories to help them keep abreast of the rising prices and also as a patriotic gesture.

This report should not be closed without expressing gratitude to Mr. Newton of the Valley Creamery for his donation of ice cream for the last-day dinner. Thanks also go to the women who worked in the kitchen in the preparation of the dinner and this includes, of course, the members of the Ways and Means committee of the Parent-Teachers association.

Twenty-four Seniors received diplomas and other special awards in the Thursday night commencement activities in the school auditorium. Dr. Charles Martz, editor of Our Times, a school magazine, using the word "democracy" as his theme, urged everyone to check into the meaning of this all-important word and compare democracies with totalitarian states.

To the students Dr. Martz suggested that they have confidence in their own abilities to do things and that by so doing they shall accomplish any obstacles in their path.

Scholastic honors were given to Geneva Partee, salutatorian, and Ralph Mahaffey and Mary Jane Higley, valedictorians. The last two named also were recipients of Capital university scholarships.

The other grades of the school finished in this order: Fourth, fourth; Second, fifth; Twelfth, sixth; Fifth, seventh; Eleventh, eighth; Third, ninth; Tenth, tenth; Ninth, eleventh; Seventh, twelfth.

Once more the Kiwanette sextette of the high school had an opportunity to perform for an out of town organization. Members of the Kiwanis club, the sextette's sponsor, took the girls and Miss Marjorie Vorhees, vocal music instructor, to Nelsonville, Tuesday, where they sang for the club of that city.

The girls sang the following selections: "In My Garden" by Firestone, "Cradle Song" by Kreisler, "When Day Is Done" by Katscher, "Deep in My Heart" by Romberg, "My Hero" by Strauss and "The World Is Waiting for the Sunrise" by Ernest.

SEXTETTE SINGS AT NELSONVILLE

Those who are arranging the annual alumni banquet in Nelsonville have asked the sextette to return to Nelsonville on May 28 to sing at this large affair. The girls are also planning to visit Newark at a future date.

B ACCALAUREATE WILL BE MAY 31

As the school year draws to a close the seniors are getting ready for the big event, Commencement. The Baccalaureate service will be on May 31 at the Presbyterian church. The Rev. Robert T. Kelley will deliver the sermon.

On Tuesday, June 2, the girl grads will be honored at a dinner by the Business and Professional Women's club.

JUNIOR GIRL RESERVES INSTALL NEW OFFICERS

Junior Girl Reserves installed new officers, heard the treasurer's report and instructed these officers in their duties, at their regular meeting.

These officers are Eleanor Mast, president; Maxine Friedman, vice-president; Anne Moeller, secretary, and Frances Meinfelter, treasurer.

JUNIOR-SENIOR PROM

Since the Junior-Senior prom was fully covered in last night's edition of the Herald, the Red and Black deems it advisable not to review this major social event.

From all reports, it is sufficient to say that the juniors and their guests enjoyed the evening.

EDITORIAL MORALE

As I sit here thinking about the subject on which I should choose to write, I gaze at the two posters at the front of the study hall. I've seen them before—in store windows, everywhere. But this is the first time I've noticed them in the school. They read "Young men, 18 to 26 inclusive." These posters are announcing that high school graduates can "fly with the Navy" or "Join the Army air cadets."

To a boy in high school this must be a great inducement—to read those signs in your school room. To me, as a girl, it is terrifying—to think of my classmates going off to war.

I continue my thoughts—thinking how important morale is in this crisis. Each and everyone of us must do his part now, when our own nation is at war and when everywhere every one is surrounded by the terrors of a world gone mad.

We, behind the lines, must carry on. It is up to us to help our neighbor carry on. If the nation behind the Army, Navy, and Marines cannot revive their morale, our fighting forces cannot be expected to carry on.

Some say that entertainment has no place in time of war. But I believe it has. Our success in our fight depends on the people—those who carry on.

As a part of "carrying on" we are asked to buy United States War Bonds and Stamps. Let's co-operate. At this time there can be no better investment made.

"COUNTY EDITOR" COMMENDS PLAY

Perhaps some of you heard the "County Editor's Chair" broadcast over WBNS Sunday, May 10. If not let us quote an excerpt from that program.

"Circleville high school presented its annual senior play 'Smilin' Through,' not so long ago with great success, according to the Daily Herald of that city. Under the direction of dramatics coach, Samuel R. Johnson, the cast came through with a splendid piece of entertainment. The cast included Mary Lou Kochheiser, Harry Clifton, William Burget, Marcella Cunningham, Jean Imler, Glen Barnhart, Lillian Thompson, Robert Goeller and Robert Kline.

H. S. PUPILS SEE DEFENSE FILMS

Wednesday morning, third period, the students of Circleville high school gathered in the auditorium for a picture show. The films were distributed by the United States Signal Corps for the purpose of educating the public and also the army on the subject of first aid.

The first reel of film dealt with first aid to be rendered in case of injuries and accidents. The second concerned chemical warfare. In it the pupils saw how efficiently the army's medical corps operated.

CHS HI-Y MEETS AT GOLD CLIFF

Members of the Stooge club had an outing at Turney Weldon's camp Tuesday. After eating their light lunches, a few of the more hardy members went swimming while others climbed cliffs. As soon as darkness and fatigue overcame them, the boys settled down and held their regular business meeting. The club discussed plans for next year and also talked over their election of an adviser for that year. Stooge's present adviser, J. L. Chilcote Jr., expects to enter Uncle Sam's service soon.

RESERVES POSTPONE MEETING UNTIL MONDAY

Due to a conflicting event on Thursday the Senior Girl Reserve meeting will be Monday at 4:15. At this time the installation of officers will take place.

CO-EDITORS APPOINTED

Julius Nash and Jerald Mason are now the first co-editors of the '41-42 Red and Black. These boys will continue to edit the paper until the end of the school year.

ALSAB TO RUN IN CHICAGO FOR WITHERS STAKE

NEW YORK, May 23—Alsab comes back to town today and about 40,000 of this village's citizens will be out at Belmont park to welcome him and root him home in the 67th running of the historic Withers mile. There are nine other crack three year olds named to run against the courageous son of Good Goods-Winds. Chant but the mob will send it in on Alsab and he may go to the post an even money favorite.

Here's the rest of the field, all of whom will shoulder 126 pounds: Star Beacon, Seamanlike, Fair Call, Dog patch, Fairaris, Kings Abbey, Sun Again, Bright Willie and Lochinvar.

Despite repeated criticism of his training routine, the Sab is sharper than ever right now and appears at peak form. He lost eight races straight before taking the Preakness two weeks ago and has trained very smartly for his 1942 debut here.

It was over this same strip that Alsab made his first big hit with eastern fans last Summer, whipping the section's best juvenile Requested in a match race at Belmont. The latter colt will not be in there today but Alsab will not have an easy time of it.

The dark horses, if there are any such thing still around, are Fairaris, a Canadian owned colt which ran a brilliant race here last week end and Star Beacon, a classy, well-bred fellow which did not run as a two year old. Sun Again is getting to his best form and also will be very much in the running.

MANY BASEBALL STARS PLAY ON DEAN'S TEAM

CHICAGO, May 23—Dizzy Dean's all-stars and the Kansas City Monarchs will square off at Wrigley field tomorrow in a game which, although outside any league, is expected to provide some of the most high-powered baseball of the year.

Bob Feller, erstwhile Cleveland Indian fireball pitcher, is scheduled to fly here tomorrow morning from the Newport, R. I., naval base to do the pitching for the all-stars, and Satchel Paige, greatest of the Negro hurriers, will be in the box for the Monarchs.

The all-star lineup includes Dean, who will start himself as pitcher but isn't expected to say out there long; Cecil Travis of the Senators, Claude Corbett and Joe Gallagher of the Dodgers, Emmett Mueller of the Phillies, Ken Sylvestri of the Yankees.

Despite this array of talent, the Negro champions were at practically even money to win.

Bing will not have to qualify, being rated as one of the nation's outstanding players. Proceeds of the tourney will be split between the Navy Relief society and the U. S. O.

Ted Williams in Navy Air Corps, Awaits Call

BOSTON, May 23—Thumpin' Teddy Williams, the elongated, sweet-hitting Boston Red Sox outfielder whose draft status was carried direct to President Roosevelt, was a Naval aviation cadet today.

It was expected, however, he would not be called up for active service until the end of the current baseball season.

The 1941 American league batting champion, whose easy going manner resulted in baseball-loving fans calling him "the Kid," was sworn in as a would-be flyer after passing a four hour Navy physical examination.

"Gee," he said after he stepped into the public relations office of the First Naval district where the enlistment announcement was made public, "I knew I'd do the right thing. This is it. I'll get a chance to fly anything the Navy has."

"Think you'll stick to flying?" someone asked.

"Listen, hitting is my first and only love," he replied. "Print that twice. When this war is over I'll be back hitting."

The $30,000-a-year slugger explained the idea of going into the Air Corps was advanced by his friend, Lieut. Robert "Whitey" Fuller, former Dartmouth college publicity director.

"Lieutenant Fuller took me through the Naval air station at Quantico," Ted said. "I had a swell time. That was three weeks ago, just before the last western trip of the club."

"I decided then to take the test but I kept it a secret because I was afraid I might flunk the test."

NOVA AND SAVOLD FIGHT POSTPONED SECOND TIME

WASHINGTON, May 23—Heavyweight Lou Nova, the California "yogi" man, and Lee Savold of Des Moines resumed training today for their ten-round bout at Griffith stadium Monday night. The fight, originally scheduled for Thursday, was postponed for the second consecutive time last night because of adverse weather conditions.

Promoters of the Navy Relief fund boxing carnival said that the postponement would be a definite break for the "gate" which is expected to exceed $40,000. The first postponement resulted in a $15,000 increase in ticket sales yesterday, they added.

The delay had no visible effect on the odds and Nova still reigned a 2 to 1 favorite to whip the Iowa battler. The winner of the fight has been promised a shot at Champion Joe Louis, it is understood.

BRAVES STAND FIVE AND HALF GAMES BEHIND

NEW YORK, May 23—Those up-and-coming Boston Braves today stood just 5½ games behind the pace-setting Brooklyn Dodgers in the National League. And the Braves held a half-game lead over the St. Louis Cardinals, all of which adds up into a good tough pennant race.

No sooner does somebody knock the Braves down than they come bouncing back with a victory to stay in the midst of the tussle for the championship.

While 5½ games behind the leaders is a fairly convincing margin, it still proves that up to now the Braves are the best team next to the leaders. None of the rest is any nearer.

The Braves last night turned on a four-run rally in the ninth inning to beat the Philadelphia Phillies, 10 to 7. Ernie Lombardi, the catcher acquired by the Braves from the Reds awhile back, made five hits in five trips, including a home run.

The Dodgers lost a game to the New York Giants, 5 to 1, to permit the Braves to shave a full game off their lead.

Mel Ott hit his seventh home run and Hank Leiber contributed one as the Giants downed the Dodgers to end a four-game losing streak.

The Giants also snapped the winning streak of Pitcher Ed Head who had taken five in a row up to yesterday. He was knocked out and charged with the defeat.

That wound-up the National league games for the day and night while in the American one tilt was run off—under flood lights. The Chicago White Sox surprisingly tripped the Detroit Tigers, 7 to 4.

This one was nip and tuck between the contending Tigers and the tail-end White Sox, but the latter showed gameness that enabled them to come back from almost certain defeat.

The Tigers filled the bases with none out in the ninth and seemed on their way to a winning rally when Joe Haynes walked in a run. But the uprising was promptly shut off then and there. The Detroit hurriers, Virgil Trucks and Johnny Gorsica, allowed 15 hits.

CHAMPION SAYS PASTOR WON MAURIELLO FIGHT

NEW YORK, May 23—"Who won it, Joe?"

They looked at the solemn-faced colored boy, sitting quietly at the ringside at Madison Square garden last night and awaited his reply.

And as usual Pvt. Joe Louis didn't waste any time—or words. "Pastor win it," said Joe, and he laughed and got up and walked out.

That's all the heavyweight champion of the world had to say about the ten round draw between Bob Pastor and young Tami Mauriello of the Bronx, fought at Madison Square garden here last night.

PASTOR'S HOPE FOR TITLE GO NOT SO BRIGHT.

Young Tami Mauriello Wins Draw With Veteran Of Squared Ring

By JACK MAHON

NEW YORK, May 23—The best fight little old New York has seen in a long, long while produced an awful lot of arguments but did not alter the heavyweight situation, one bit, according to Promoter Mike Jacobs, after a survey of the ruins of last night's Bob Pastor-Tami Mauriello brawl at Madison Square garden.

"I will not have anything to say about a Pastor-Louis heavyweight fight for another week or so," said Mike when pressed for information after Bicycle Bob had fought to a ten round draw with young Mauriello here last evening.

A good portion of the 11,322 fans who paid $22,972 to watch the bout thought Mauriello won it but the judges, Charlie Draycott and Marty Monroe and Referee George Walsh couldn't separate the gladiators and they ruled everything all even.

This was very much all right with Uncle Michael. Many of the citizens thought, because Pastor a 5 to 1 choice, did not win with plenty to spare he might have nullified his chances of getting his second chance at Private Louis' title in July.

No One Matched

"I've not matched anyone with Louis yet and probably won't be able to for another ten days," said Promoter Jacobs shortly after both boys left the ring last night. "Pastor didn't lose, did he?"

That's about the story, so far as repercussions of an amazing fight go. Bob lost a lot of friends by not beating Kid Mauriello, easily, but he didn't lose anything else.

As for the fight, it would take a book to describe what went on. Pastor, with a chance at the heavyweight title hanging in the balance was lucky to get a draw. That's the opinion of this observer.

We don't mean to say that Mauriello won going away or that it wasn't a close fight. It was one of the toughest fights we've ever had to judge, but Pastor was not even close till they hit the sixth round of the ten round battle.

Mauriello, who has fought like a wild, over-ambitious amateur in his recent bouts, amazed everyone in the garden by standing back, measuring his punches and jabbing with a good straight left throughout. He looked like an entirely different fighter than the crazy kid who was licked twice in as many starts by Gus Lesnevich in the same garden last Fall.

Tami did not rush in wildly and try to massacre Pastor, as expected, in the first round. He dropped him with a right when Bob was a bit off balance. The bicycle boy was up without a count and was not hurt but you could see he knew he was in for a rough evening.

Judge Charlie Draycott scored it seven rounds for Mauriello, three for Pastor; Judge Marty Monroe called it five for Pastor, four for Mauriello and one even when Referee George Walsh scored it even, five rounds for each. The writer scored it four rounds for each, with two even, and thought a draw decision very, very satisfactory.

NEW YORK, May 23—Bob Pastor was considerably miffed today at the draw decision given him in his fight with Tami Mauriello in the garden last night.

"I will never fight in New York again," Pastor declared in his dressing room. "I will fight Tami Louis or anyone, anytime—but not in New York. I can't fight the crowd, the boxing commission and a man in the ring at the same time."

Pastor was particularly irked at Judge Charlie Draycott who gave Tami seven of the ten rounds.

GEHRINGER ACTIVE

CHICAGO, May 23—The Detroit Tigers today put Charlie Gehringer back on their active roster, and a spokesman for the club announced that he will "continue to serve as a coach" but will also be used as a pinch hitter when needed. Gehringer retired as a player last Winter after seventeen seasons, during which he had a lifetime batting average of .321. He was troubled with a sore back last year.

And as usual Pvt. Joe Louis didn't waste any time—or words. "Pastor win it," said Joe, and he laughed and got up and walked out.

Altered Regulations Are Issued In Sugar Rationing Program

CANNING MAJOR ISSUE COVERED BY NEW DECREE

Supply To Be Issued To Consumers At Various Seasons

OTHER RULES EXPLAINED

Farmers Not Permitted To Receive Bigger Order During Harvest

With various changes made in the government's sugar rationing program during the last week many persons are still undecided as to just what procedure they are to go through to comply with the restrictions. Of special interest is the canning sugar question. Persons wishing sugar for this purpose are to apply for a rationing certificate at the rationing board some time after next Monday.

New set-up on the canning question allows a canner one pound of sugar for each four quarts of fruit that is canned. This does not mean that a consumer is to receive all his canning sugar at one time, but that as different fruits come into season he can apply for sugar to can that particular item. In filing applications for this extra sugar a person must report to the rationing board how much of the fruit he canned last year, how much of the fruit he has on hand now and must display his War Rationing books.

Other new regulations recently released include:

1. No war ration books will be issued to persons who registered excess amounts of sugar until sufficient number of rationing periods has expired during which the consumer, if he had ration stamps, might have purchased an amount of sugar equal to his excess. This ruling has been emphasized because many persons who have excess sugar are not using it at the rate of one pound per person every two weeks and when their supply runs out they will not be issued new books until their time is up.

2. Grocers may accept sugar purchase certificates as well as sugar rationing stamps.

3. In the event a War Ration book is lost, a person may obtain a new book by applying to his local rationing board, but it cannot be issued to him until two months after the application.

4. Farmers may not obtain additional sugar for threshing or other seasonal crews. Each member of such crews will have to furnish his own sugar.

5. Replacing an old ruling allowing organizations sugar for dinners, banquets and the like the following new regulation has been set up for rationing boards. No sugar will be issued to any church, lodge, club or other private organization for serving a meal unless it is considered an industrial user or it must serve four such meals each week of the year. Sugar for these gatherings will have to be obtained through personal donations.

In announcing the above regulations the local board has stated that they will be put in effect immediately. The rationing board is housed on the second floor of the city building.

a similar trial of similar organization with a similar result, except that on the earlier occasion the number of executions was 18 instead of 96.

The German prosecutor at that 1941 court martial declared that "many German soldiers have been pushed into the water during the blackout, poisoned or shot from ambush. . . the German authorities will deal with this situation with all possible means."

For a year the Nazi authorities have been using "all possible means," but the secret organizations have continued their work. Not one of the men accused in the last trial knew his leaders. They received their instructions in codes that were changed almost every day. A special system of distributing these instructions was devised which the Germans have not yet been able to discover.

Marshal Semyon Timoshenko's powerful armies, after slaying 15,000 Nazis to crush the German counter-offensive in the Izyum-Barvenkovo sector to the south-east, closed in on the city and began fortifying strategic positions captured from the Germans.

On one sector alone, it was said, a single Red army division repulsed 11 German attacks in one day and killed more than 3,000.

concentrating powerfully motorized forces in the Slavansk region, 110 miles northwest of Taganrog on the Sea of Azov. Heavy German detachments, it was claimed, succeeded in advancing north of Slavansk and occupied two bridgeheads on the left bank of the Donets river in the rear of Soviet positions.)

Some Leave Kerch

(Axis reports asserted that some German units had been withdrawn from the fighting on the Kerch peninsula and sent into western Crimea in an effort to knock out the Russian Black Sea naval base at Sevastopol. It was claimed that the besieged base has been under violent bombardment for the last 48 hours by planes of the German luftwaffe.) As the Nazi defenses before Kharkov began to crack an increasing number of Germans was reported surrendering.

An indication of the fierceness of the struggle which resulted from the German counter-attack below Kharkov was seen in the official Soviet announcement which said that the 15,000 German troops had been killed in only three days of fighting. On one sector alone, it was said, a single Red army division repulsed 11 German attacks in one day and killed more than 3,000.

This heavy toll suggested that the German losses since the beginning of Timoshenko's offensive would be staggering when casualties along the entire 100-mile front became known.

BRITISH PLANES HIT ST. NAZAIRE WITH BIG BOMBS

LONDON, May 23—The Nazi-held submarine base at St. Nazaire on the coast of occupied France was bombed early today by RAF planes.

Enemy waters also were mined by the British craft, all of which returned safely to their English base.

RAF fighter planes in large formations swept over the channel toward northern France after daybreak in the first big-scale operation in several days.

Explosions from the French coast were heard on the English side of the channel.

Many planes formed vapour trails as they streamed overhead at altitudes between 20,000 and 30,000 feet. The trail of one formation alone extended from inland Kent and spread across the channel in the direction of Boulogne. Other trails marked the sky over Cap Griz Nez.

TRAVEL WILL BE LIMITED

planes, the office of defense transportation inaugurated a survey of intercity bus and railroad passenger travel originating in 100 cities. "The data thus compiled will be used by ODT as an aid to adjusting passenger travel requirements to the available supply of passenger transportation facilities and services," officials said.

Interview Travelers

At the same time, WPA workers will interview more than 20,000 intercity travelers to ascertain the purpose of their trips, frequency of travel, mileage and destination. The information will serve as a background for travel rationing anticipated by late Summer.

Bus service between Washington and New York will be placed on a war footing June 1 and the plan soon will be extended to other "critical" areas of the nation, ODT representatives said.

In the first test, the four lines operating between the two eastern cities will ban express runs, pool equipment, stagger schedules and honor each other's tickets.

ODT officials initiated the plan as a rubber conservation move and expected to reduce operating mileage of the four companies 5,000 miles a day.

The necessity of conserving automobile tires through national gasoline rationing was driven home to American motorists by WPB Chief Donald M. Nelson and Rubber Czar Arthur Newhall.

"If we evaluate the importance of all the scarce commodities in the nation, rubber comes first," Nelson said. "Rubber is indelibly linked with everything we do today. It affects the civilian population more than any one thing except food and water."

He added the solemn warning that "every bit of synthetic rubber produced in the next two years will be needed for the military services and the war program of this country."

Not Winning Yet

"We're fighting a war," Newhall declared. "It is desperate and we aren't winning yet. If the axis nations held a council of war before Pearl Harbor, they must have decided that the thing to do to the United States was to immobilize it, because the nation has set itself on rubber tires. The easiest thing to do was to cut off our rubber supply. And they did cut us off from the area where 95 percent of the world's crude rubber was produced."
